DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Danielson et al. in view of Beach et al.

Danielson et al. shows all of the limitations of the claims except for specifying the use of a web browser application with control user entry, HTML documents, and peripheral devices including a printer and cash drawers, which automatically open during a sale.

Danielson et al. shows, figures 1 and 3, an in-store multiple device communications unit and centralized data system (electronic data network). Figure 3 shows a district central site 30 (central database facility, central database management facility) in communication through line 32 with multiple store location units 31-N (application facilities, client data processing facilities). Figure 1 shows each store location units network including a point of sale network 13 (user interfaces, remote point of sale, having self-contained software), which performs the day-to-day sales functions (operation and verification of user-entered data). Sales and operation data (items) are processed through (received, retrieved, accessed) the network. The corporate network 34 (enterprise function) receives and supplies data (enterprise data) to the network.

Beach et al. teaches, figure 1, a POS network system using an Internet and intranet scanning terminal system. In a preferred embodiment of the invention, a portable terminal having an integrated machine code reader (script instructions for control user-entry) and a radio is provided with a graphical user interface such as a □web browser□ in order to display instructional files (column 2, lines 8-12). The structure of the system permits the retail facility to use standard programming tools such as HTML 3.0 for the creation of an Intranet/Internet environment for ease of retrieving and converting data files (column 10, lines 35-39). Figure 6 shows many devices including a printer linked to POS terminal 170 in order to document and facilitate sales.

The examiner takes official notice that POS registers can have cash drawers, which open automatically during a sale in order to hold the cash and facilitate the sale.

Based on the teaching of Beach et al., it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to modify the phone line communication system of Danielson et al. to incorporate the Beach et al. communications system including the use of the Internet, a web browser, and HTML documents in order to take advantage of improved displays and improved ability to retrieve and convert data files. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to expand upon the POS terminals of Danielson et al. to incorporate cash drawers which open automatically during a sale in order to hold the cash and facilitate the sale and printers in order to document and facilitate sales.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 1/28/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant asserts that the combination of references does not show "real time". The examiner does not concur. The GUI web browser is considered to be "real time" communication and processing.

Applicant asserts that Danielson teaches away from the modification suggested by the rejection. The examiner does not concur. The improvement of an entire communication system is still obvious over the best mode of an inferior system.

Conclusion

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
